

RELATING COMBINATORIAL AND VARIATIONAL DISTANCES BETWEEN TREES

SEBASTIEN ROCH

I will describe recent results on a connection between the so-called reconstruction problem on Markov random fields on trees and two important problems in computational evolutionary biology: the inference of ancestral states and the estimation of phylogenies using maximum likelihood.

This is joint work with Allan Sly. No biology background will be assumed.